Docket Number 04-7984

I have shy bladder, which is a condition that makes it difficult to produce urine samples on demand. As a for instance, it is often quite difficult or impossible for me to produce a specimen in a doctors office.

I strongly object to proposed rules which do not allow for easily available alternative methods of drug testing. SAMSHA should propose the use of oral, sweat or hair tests for anyone who requests these.

The present rules are highly intrusive and unjust. People should not be judged on their ability to produce a urine specimen under pressure.

I hope SAMSHA can help lead the way to a civil solution to this problem
